

The Flourishing Circle

Chinese Channels and Points for Oriental Bodywork

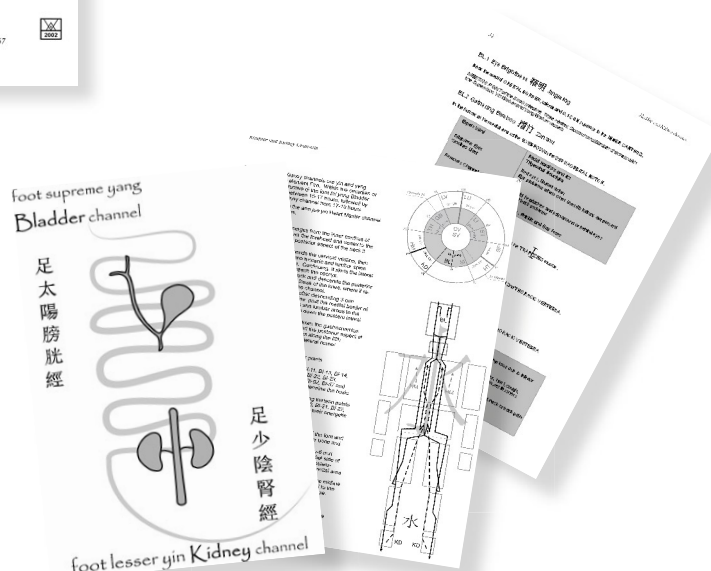

Volume One

Veet Allan

This book is the first of an intended two volume set on the classical channel, vessel and point systems of Chinese medicine. As such, this volume is primarily aimed at the oriental bodywork student looking for a basic illustrated resource on the primary channels, vessels and points to compliment their existing studies within a professional teaching environment

- For students and of professional oriental bodywork disciplines such as Acupuncture, Shiatsu and Tuina.
- Each chapter follows a channel or vessel pair through the Chinese clock sequence and contains full descriptions of all the main channels and vessels.
- Contains 14 full colour chart illustrations of the fourteen basic Chinese medical channels and vessels.
- 35 black line art or greyscale illustrations augment the text throughout.
- Contains studies of 108 points with regard to location, action and indications, all as per UK Shiatsu Society professional syllabus 2000
- All points are identified by their western notational number, romanised name, chinese character and pinyin name.
- Also includes a section on proportional body measurement, a points names index and table of point studies per body zone.
